

WATCHFUL WAITING WINS

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

There Stood Old Christian.

Locally the election passed off quietly. The weather was fine and both sides worked hard to get out their votes. There seemed to be no improper use of money and the vote was a free expression of the will of the 8200 votes who exercised the right of suffrage. There was little scratching and less than 50 scattering votes in the county. Of these the Prohibition ticket got 23 so far as reported.

Judge Bush ran about 125 votes ahead of the electoral ticket. Kincheloe ran a few votes ahead also. Democrats are jubilant over the result in this county. Last year Morrow's majority over Stanley was 2038. This year none of the Republican majorities reach 1000. Judge Bush made a clear reduction of 1211 from the Morrow majority. Democrats are greatly encouraged for the county election next year. A change of 500 votes is all that is necessary to win and several hundred Republicans usually vote with the Democrats in strictly local contests.

The women helped some.

Kincheloe has 3,848 majority in the Second district.

Both Houses of Congress remain Democratic.

A little more watchful waiting and all will come out right.

With a square show-down and everybody voting, the Republicans have less than 1,000 majority in Christian county.

KILLED ON ELECTION NIGHT

Ewing Wood Shoots Joe Stewart at Williamson's Livery Stable.

DETAILS ARE MEAGRE

Said To Have Caused By a Dispute Over a Bottle of Liquor.

Ewing Wood, a son of Mrs. Helen Wood, of 927 South Main street, shot and killed Joe Stewart at Williamson's livery stable on West Seventh street late Tuesday night.

Stewart was 46 years old and a son of Dabney Stewart, of near Gracey. He lived with Julian Stewart and both ran the farm of M. F. Crenshaw on the Cadiz road.

Wood, who is about 35 years old, gave himself up and was lodged in jail.

Stewart's body was carried to Waller & Trice's undertaking establishment, where it remained until yesterday, when it was taken to the Cerulean Springs neighborhood for burial in the Lander graveyard.

The shooting is said to have arisen over a bottle of whisky, but just how is not definitely known. Stewart lived only a few minutes after being shot.

Wood has a wife and two children and lives at 723 West 7th street.

Late Returns Necessary To Tell Who Has Been Elected in a Neck and Neck Finish In The Presidential Contest, Fraught With Many Surprises.

LOOKS SAFE

New York, Nov. 8.—Democratic Chairman McCormick claims 288 votes. The Democrats retain the Senate and the House seems safe. Wilson has Ohio by 80,000, Wyoming conceded, Kansas by 15,000, North Dakota by 800, Utah by 15,000, Minnesota by 8,000 and California by 7,500.

LATEST

All day yesterday crowds hung about the Postal Telegraph office, where bulletins were caught from time to time. The news grew better all day. Democratic headquarters claimed 265 votes sure with several western states in doubt. These came in for Wilson and when California was reported safe for Wilson a bulletin came claiming 288 votes safe. Wilson's election is now claimed confidently. Every report grows better.

New York, Nov. 8.—Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the democratic national committee at midnight said: "Our reports received up to midnight showed that the president had received certainly 270 electoral votes not including Massachusetts and Connecticut or California and other far western states yet to be heard from."

Up to half past twelve Mr. McCormick had declined to give out a list of the states upon which he claimed 270 electoral votes for President Wilson. Just before midnight the election returns still incomplete in many states indicated the election of Hughes and Fairbanks, but the figures were very close and the democratic managers steadfastly refused to concede a republican victory.

Although the metropolitan newspapers which have supported President Wilson conceded his defeat, the democratic managers insisted that complete returns from the west would reverse the trend which steadily seemed to be piling up the Hughes column.

WILCOX CLAIMS 254 VOTES.

Just after 11 o'clock, republican headquarters absolutely claimed Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, JUDGE C. H. BUSH.

South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and California, with a total of 254 electoral votes. That was twelve less than 266 necessary to an election.

WOOLLEY DISPUTES STATEMENT.

When shown the list of states claimed by the republican national committee, Robert W. Woolley, director of publicity of the democratic national committee said that the claim of the republicans was without foundation. He said that of the states named, Connecticut, Idaho, Delaware, Iowa, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin were as near as democratic reports showed, probably for President Wilson. Of these states Mr. Woolley declared Delaware, West Virginia, Maryland and Wisconsin were certainly for Wilson and in all other states reports showed that Wilson was leading.

Speaking for the democratic national committee Mr. Woolley claimed the following states having a total of 313 electoral votes: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Early reports Tuesday night all pointed to the election of Hughes but the actual figures as they came in later in the night did not confirm the first estimates in many instances. By midnight the news came that the Democrats by no means were ready to concede the victory to the Republicans. While Wilson lost both New York and New Jersey, he showed up strong in the West, carrying States where little had been expected. Yesterday morning the news began to grow better with every report and Democratic hopes were revived. But the result was found to be so close that both sides thought it better to wait the fuller returns.

The hope of the Democrats has not been centered on victory in New York and New Jersey, although they had reason for a time to think they would carry those states. With a victory in Ohio, a chance of carrying Indiana, the outcome of the election in Illinois declared by the Democrats to be uncertain, and the results in many of the Western States in doubt, the champions of the candidacy of President Wilson insist they have no great reason to be disheartened. The claim of Vance McCormick, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, whose figures show that the President will win with 280 electoral votes—22 more than is necessary for election—did much to kindle the enthusiasm of the Wilson supporters.

Following are the States claimed for Hughes with good grounds:

Connecticut,	7.
Delaware,	3.
Illinois,	29.
Iowa,	13.
Maine,	6.
Massachusetts,	18.
Michigan,	15.
New Hampshire,	4.
New Jersey,	14.
New York,	45.
Oregon,	5.
Pennsylvania,	38.
Rhode Island,	5.
North Dakota,	5.
Vermont,	4.
Washington,	7.
Wisconsin,	13.

Total 231

The Democrats have apparently carried:

Alabama,	12.
Arizona,	8.
Arkansas,	9.
California,	13.
Colorado,	6.
Florida,	6.
Georgia,	14.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY

John Bowles Kills Wife, Son-in-law And Self.

LITTLE KNOWN OF DETAIL

Tragedy Occurred Late at Night and No Cause Known.

John Bowles, known as "Durham" John Bowles, a farmer aged about 55 years, killed his wife with a pistol Tuesday night, at his home near Pembroke. He next came to town and going to the residence of Jas. G. Aldridge, at 1246 Walnut street, called him up out of his bed and shot him dead with the shotgun.

Starting back homeward, Bowles reached a point near Cate's mill and going aside into a vacant lot shot himself through the head with a pistol, producing instant death. Persons who heard the shot later went to the scene and discovered the man's dead body.

Bowles it is said attempted to kill his son, Frank, aged 18, Tuesday morning, but the boy left home. He returned at night and the trouble was renewed and in a struggle the boy threw his father down. As soon as he could get up he ran for his gun and the boy again ran away. While still in hearing, he heard the pistol shots that killed his mother. Besides the boy, Frank, and two married daughters, the couple had four smaller children, who lived at home. Their mother was killed before she went to bed, as she was found dressed. She was shot five times with a pistol. The frightened children ran away from home.

Bowles then got his horse and arming himself with a double-barrel shotgun come to town on a hunt for his son-in-law, Jas. G. Aldridge, who married his daughter, Lucy. George Aldridge married his other daughter. Jim Aldridge had moved and after several inquiries, Bowles located him at his new home on East 18th street, and going to the window raised it and called to Aldridge who sat up in his bed. Bowles shot him through the body and he fell out on the floor. He then got in at the window and shot the other barrel into his head. He told his daughter that he had killed her mother and when he had killed George, would be satisfied, that he did not want to hurt her. He then left and going towards his home shot himself as above stated, using the same pistol with which he had killed his wife. His body was found at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. The sheriff was notified and the bodies of husband and wife were brought to Keach's and prepared for burial.

Aldridge's body was taken to his former home near Pembroke. All three will be buried today at noon.

Mrs. Bowles is spoken of as a christian woman and a devoted mother. Aldridge was about 28 years old.

FINISHING TOUCHES.

The concrete walks in front of the new Methodist church are now being put down. The front walk is 30 feet wide and runs back about 40 feet to the steps of the church. It is level except for two or three steps near the sidewalk to reach the higher level to which the yard has been graded. Other pavements run from the street along the sides of the yard and church, leading to the side entrances. All of the shade trees formerly in the yard have been cut down. There will be two grass plats about 30 by 40 feet on either side.

THURSDAY, NOV. 9

Women voted in 12 States having 91 electoral votes.

Election day was all that either side could have hoped for. If any man failed to vote he was not kept from doing so by the weather.

Owing to the continued illness of Circuit Judge John S. Rhea at his home at Russellville, the November term of the Simpson Circuit Court, which should have met Monday, was continued until Monday, November 20.

John A. Hoagland, the baking powder millionaire, and his bride, formerly Miss Billie Allen, are occupying separate apartments in New York, although both deny that there is to be a separation. The couple have been married three months.

After a week or more of doubt concerning operations in the Dobrudja region of Rumania where Teutonics have been marching almost unimpeded northward from the Black sea to the Danube, comes the report that the Rumanians have taken the offensive, probably aided by Russians and compelled to retreat at several points.

The American Government has informed the defacto Government that precautions should be taken to prevent any violation of Mexico's neutrality by operation of belligerent submarines within its territorial waters or the establishment of a submarine base on the Mexican coast. The information was conveyed, a State Department official said, in a wholly friendly spirit and not at the suggestion of the Entente Powers.

Hunters are making preparations to hike to the fields next week, when the bird season opens on Wednesday, Nov. 15th. Reports from every section indicate an abundance of quail. The new law this year limits twelve birds per day to each hunter. Hunters will also discover when they go to purchase their shells quite an advance over last year. They have gone up about 50 per cent. and the box of 25 shells each now sell at 85 cents.

A special term of the Hopkins circuit court convened yesterday morning, for the purpose of trying Mack Logan, D. F. Tribble and Buck Ferguson, all under indictment charged with wilful murder, as a result of the tragedy at Dawson Springs, when Chief of Police K. H. Keach and Dick Rodgers were killed last July. These cases were called during the last week of the September term, and, after the jury had been completed, were continued on account of absent Commonwealth witnesses. Judge Henderson agreed to call the special term to try the cases.

According to a statement made by Judge Chambers, chairman of the Board of Mediation and Conciliation, President Smith has flatly refused the offer of the board to attempt to bring about peace between the L. & N. railroad and its trainmen, and Chambers says a strike on the L. & N. and Atlantic Coast Line and subsidiary roads is imminent. If a strike comes the Newlands act will be invoked, says Chambers. President Smith refused the suggestion of the Mediation Board that he accept affidavits of the trainmen discharged at Nashville that they had no part in union affairs.

ORRINE FOR DRINKING MEN

We are in earnest when we ask you to give Orrine a trial. You have nothing to risk and everything to gain, for your money will be returned if after a trial you fail to get results from Orrine. This offer gives the wives and mothers of those who drink to excess an opportunity to try the Orrine treatment. It is a very simple treatment, can be given in the home secretly, without publicity, or loss of time from business.

Orrine is prepared in two forms: No. 1, secret treatment; Orrine No. 2, the voluntary treatment. Costs only $1.00 a box. Ask us for a booklet. L. L. ELGIN, No. 4 Main Street, Hopkinsville, Ky.—Advertisement.

HER LAST HOUR OF SERVICE

This Newark Domestic Made a Cleanly Exit, Aided by the Services of Her Employer.

Mariar was going. For a week the housework had stood still, "because," as Mrs. Woodside said, "you can't ask a maid to do anything when she's leaving."

For a week the kitchen range had been cold, likewise the water tank beside it; and, there being no gas heater in the Woodside home, the grownups had contented themselves with cold baths and the children with such purification as could be accomplished with occasional bedtime teakettles of hot water. "I ought to have Mariar start the fire," said the mistress, "but it means bringing up coal from the cellar, and I'm afraid to ask her."

The hour of Mariar's departure had arrived. She lazied through the breakfast dishwashing, then disappeared upstairs to pack. Mrs. Woodside went into the deserted kitchen and said, "Now I'll have a fire and boilerful of hot water at last." She brought kindling and coal from the lower regions, she built the fire and stoked it for an hour, until the water tank gave out a grateful heat. Then she went to look for Mariar.

The outgoing maid was not in her room. Mrs. Woodside came down from the third floor perplexed. Could Mariar have gone without saying goodbye?

Then from behind the closed door of the bathroom came the joyous sound of one luxuriating in a porcelain tub filled with glorious hot water. Mariar was taking a bath.—Newark News.

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS

Add a cupful of cooked rice when making beef loaf and the loaf will be moist and slice firmly and will have a new flavor.

After plucking and singeing fowls dampen them slightly, sprinkle with flour, rub gently all over and wash in tepid water.

Mix the salt with the flour before milk or water is added in making thickening for gravies, etc., and thereby prevent lumpiness.

Before pouring hot fruit into a glass dish or jar, place the receptacle on a cloth wet in cold water. This prevents the glass from breaking.

To remove oil stains and paint from windows, wet a woolen cloth with ammonia and apply to the spots, rubbing briskly but not too hard.

To prevent cakes, pies and other pastry from burning on the bottom sprinkle the bottom of the oven with fine, dry salt, and your cakes or pies will bake perfectly.

To make a light and dark layer cake first bake the dark part, then when almost done remove from the oven, pour the light part over it, put back in the oven and bake quickly.

Instead of Starch.

If you have found the ordinary starch unsatisfactory when "doing up" your fine white wear try making starch either of borax or gum arabic. The borax method is the simpler in that it is merely added to the rinsing water (two heaping teaspoonfuls of borax to five quarts of water is the proportion) and gives the garments when ironed just the right amount of crispness. To make a gum arabic starch use half an ounce of the gum arabic to a cupful of boiling water. Dilute to suit your taste in stiffness and use as you would the common laundry variety.

Glass Plant Shelf.

It is a good idea to have glass cut to fit a shelf on which plants stand. The glass is easily cleaned and saves the wood underneath. A piece of plate glass cut to fit a window ledge or top of a radiator will often furnish a convenient shelf. A pretty tea-room has its tables covered first with an attractive pattern in cretonne, and this in turn covered with plate glass exactly fitting the tables.

NEED FOR DAYS OF STORM

Sage Reflections on the Impossibility of Life Being Always a Bed of Roses.

Every woman, young and old, knows what it is to have cross days; days when, from sunrise till sunset, every mortal thing seems to go wrong, no matter how hard one tries to have them go right. For that matter, one always does try harder on such days than one the happy-go-lucky ones when life flows on smoothly and harmoniously, like "a grand, sweet song." Goodness knows, there is enough conscientious effort wasted on a single cross day to balance half a year of ordinary days.

Why is this? Is crossness a disordered state of the mind, or an overwrought condition of the nerves, or simply the reflection of an inexplicable but unanimous "crossedness" on the part of things in general? And if it be any or all of these, is there any way or overcoming it?

Crossness, like most other conditions of life, is the inevitable effect of a perfectly natural cause. Good humor, like fine weather, cannot possibly last forever. If it could, it would inevitably become an intolerable bore. Being eternally pleasant and agreeable is all right theoretically, but it is a terrific strain on the nerves.

It is dreadfully wearing, too, on other people. Did you ever have to live in the same house with somebody who was always placid, always even-tempered, no matter who else was worried and distraught? And were you not sometimes seized with an unholy yearning to do something perfectly awful and fiendish, that you might for once startle that hateful being out of his or her maddening imperturbability?

Music by Wireless.

A young California inventor has designed an apparatus whereby selections played on a phonograph have been transmitted to several neighboring homes equipped with special receiving instruments. Popular Mechanics Magazine states. In some instances the instruments have been installed in the dining room and by this arrangement the neighbors have been entertained at mealtime. A wireless telephone apparatus upon which the inventor has been working several years is used at his central station. A phonograph, in which the horn is an integral part of the body of the instrument, is used in producing the selections. The slats are removed from the mouth of the horn and within it are placed two ordinary telephone transmitters, from which the sounds are carried by wires to the wireless telephone outfit which, after serving as an amplifier, sends the waves through a cable in the aerial on the roof, whence they are discharged into the air.

The waves are caught by the various receiving stations and conveyed by wires to receivers each of which is fitted with a small megaphone. In several instances head appliances with a pair of receivers were used. In others a single megaphone was sufficient for a group of persons.

SON OF MINISTER CERTAIN TO WIN

If Hughes Succeeds He Will Be the First Baptist--
Wilson Presbyterian.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Whoever wins the presidential election, the United States is certain to be governed during the next four years by the son of a preacher.

If Charles E. Hughes should win, however, the Baptist church, for the first time since the republic was created, will have a representative in the white house. There never has been a president who belonged to the Baptist church.

As a rule the presidents of the United States have been christian believers. Of the twenty-seven a few, notably Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Johnson, were not connected with any church, but their intimate biographers record them as believers in the christian faith. Thomas Jefferson is described as a liberal and non-sectarian. Andrew Johnson most frequently attended the Methodist church, of which his wife was a devout member.

Most of the presidents have belonged to the Episcopal church—especially the earlier presidents. Of the first ten presidents five were members of that church. Washington was a devout communicant and many years a vestryman in his parish. It was only natural that the religious predilections of the early presidents should tend toward the Episcopal church, the church of England, for the first census—that of 1790—showed that 82 per cent. of the population of the United States was of English birth and straight English extraction.

PRESIDENTIAL AFFILIATIONS.

The churches and affiliation of the twenty-five presidents, excluding Jefferson and Johnson, were:

Reformed Dutch—Van Buren and Roosevelt.

Episcopalian—Washington, Madison, Monroe, William Henry Harrison, Tyler, Taylor, Pierce and Arthur.

Unitarian—John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Fillmore and Taft.

Presbyterian—Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, Lincoln, Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison and Wilson.

Methodist—Grant, Hayes and McKinley.

For the first time the candidate of a great party belongs to a church that has not been represented either in the white house or by a party candidate. Mr. Hughes has been a Baptist not only from early boyhood, following the teaching of his father, who was a Baptist minister, but he has been perhaps more ardently and actively associated with the workers of that faith than any former president has been with any church organization.

GEORGE MUNSON

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

When Dyer was made manager of the company the employees knew that changes were coming. Dyer was a small-minded man, and the new president was a man of the same type. Efficiency was to take the place of good-will.

"It isn't that I'd care, ordinarily," Dora, said Lawson, the chief executive, to Miss Henderson, his stenographer. "I've got three thousand saved. But I reckoned on three years more before I could start for myself. Now—"

There was a big question tagged to that "now." For Dora and Jim Lawson had been engaged a whole year, though nobody in the office suspected it, and they had planned to be married the next vacation.

"He'll overreach himself," said Dora calmly. "He thinks he knows everything—and he knows nothing."

"He hates me," said Lawson. "I guess I'm slated to be retired."

So events proved. Dyer sent for Lawson a few days later, and Lawson came out of the office very white and began gathering up the papers on his desk. Dora, seated near him, understood.

"Tomorrow," whispered the chief executive.

"The small-minded beast!" said Dora angrily.

She went into Dyer's office after luncheon. She was half incoherent with anger. Lawson had been with the firm nine years, and she and Lawson knew every detail of the office work.

The manager was dictating as she entered, and Dora heard a few words, enough, however, to make her realize that the company's fight for the patent rights had come to a head. She entered, but Dyer neither looked up nor offered her a chair.

"And as we stated in our letter, quoting that of the patent owner—"

Dora, Seated Near Him, Understood.

he began. Then, "where is that letter?" he asked.

"Mr. Lawson has it," said the stenographer.

The manager telephoned and learned that Lawson had gone home. Lawson's work for the company had ended. And Dora's heart gave a great leap. She knew where that letter was. It was the most important letter that the company possessed, though the new president had never had the sense to understand how much hung upon it, nor Dyer either. Dora saw Dyer suddenly turn white.

"We must get him at once," he said. "Well, Miss Henderson?"

"In discharging Mr. Lawson," said Dora, "you have lost the services of your most useful man. And I won't stay."

"I intended to ask for your resignation tomorrow," sneered Dyer. "Now I discharge you instead. You can get your money at once and go."

Dora clenched her fists and choked down her sobs. "All right, Mr. Dyer," she said, "but I have one thing to say to you. When the new management took things over I had charge of that letter about the patent. It was placed in my hands by Mr. Atterbury a week before he died. It wasn't filed among the other letters. Mr. Atterbury knew that some day there would be thousands of dollars dependent on it. And you won't get it."

"Eh?" blustered Dyer. "What do you mean?"

"I mean just what I say," answered Dora. "That letter was placed by me in a certain part of the office, among certain papers, and it'll take the whole force just a month to find it. Think you can wait a month, Mr. Dyer?"

"What the—" began Dyer. Then, checking himself. "See here, Miss Henderson, do you realize that this is blackmail?"

"No," answered Dora. "I have not asked you for anything."

"But you imply that you refuse to hand over that paper unless you are reinstated."

"Nothing of the kind," said Dora. "I wouldn't work for a man like you."

I wouldn't work after Mr. Lawson had gone."

"Think a mighty lot of Lawson, don't you?" jeered Dyer. "Now, see here, young woman, my stenographer has been taking down every word you have said, and unless you divulge where you have put that paper I'll call a policeman."

"But that won't give you the paper," answered Dora.

Dyer looked at her in despair and tried a new tack.

"How much do you want for it?" he asked.

"It isn't for sale."

"You are an employee of this company. It is your duty to deliver it to me. That is what you get your salary for. If you refuse you can and will be arrested."

"I am no longer an employee of this company," retorted Dora. "You have just discharged me."

Mr. Dyer glared at her. "Well, what are your terms?" he demanded, with a ferocious scowl.

"A three years' contract for Mr. Lawson," answered Dora.

"You're crazy!" shouted Dyer, rising. "Do you think I am going to be blackmailed in this way?"

"Evidently not," answered Dora. "Good afternoon, Mr. Dyer. One moment, please. If you put your hand on me I shall have you arrested."

Dyer glared at her in baffled bewilderment. And at that moment Lawson himself appeared at the door.

"Good-day, Mr. Dyer," he said, holding out his hand. "If there is anything I can do to clean up before I leave—"

"I'm wise to this game!" snarled Dyer. "You pretended that you had gone home and sent this woman—this woman—in here to blackmail me."

Lawson stepped forward, his face set, his fists clenched. But Dora intervened.

"I have just been discharged, Mr. Lawson," she said, "and Mr. Dyer wants that paper referring to the contract which Mr. Atterbury thought would some day have value. You remember I have often spoken of it to you."

"Ah, yes," said Lawson vaguely.

"Where is it, Miss Henderson?" And the tone of his voice was so obviously sincere that Dyer realized his theory of blackmail had fallen to the ground.

"Mr. Dyer has discharged me," pursued Dora, "and consequently I have no further duty toward this office. He will get it in return for a three years' contract with you to remain chief executive."

"He will, will he?" shouted Lawson in a rage. "Well, I guess he won't. I've just called up the Smith-Benson company and accepted a position as their manager at just 50 per cent more money."

Dyer turned deathly white. "Good Lord!" he gasped. For the Smith-Benson company was their most dangerous rival.

"If you like to reconsider, Lawson—" he began.

Lawson turned away, offering Dora his arm. Dora turned.

"You'll find that paper in the third drawer of your desk, Mr. Dyer," she said. "Yes—under the false bottom. I had it made. Good afternoon."

Side by side Lawson and Dora left the office. But in the street he took her in his arms and—yes, kissed her. A boy who was passing grinned, but neither cared.

"I guess, dear, that since I don't start in on my new job for a month we'll take that vacation now," he said.

Primitive Life in Hawaii.

Steps are being taken at once to preserve the fast-vanishing remnants of the picturesque Hawaiian native life. There are now but few places in the group of islands where the old primitive conditions may be found, but it is now proposed to set aside a considerable area of forest land a few miles from Hilo, Hawaii, the second city of the territory. Here will be established a real native community of the ancient type; grass houses will be erected and all of the tropical trees and fruits indigenous to Hawaii will be carefully cultivated. The natives will be settled in the reserve under certain wise restrictions and every encouragement will be given them to dwell together in the ancient native fashion. Here will be carried on the making of tapa cloth and the beautiful calabashes which now command high prices among connoisseurs; the weaving of the exquisite headgear and mats from the leaves of the pihala tree will be undertaken and every effort will be made to provide a park which will not only restore the old conditions of native life, but prove an immense attraction to tourists.

Gold You Can See Through.

Gold, which becomes so important in war time, is an extremely interesting substance in many ways.

It can be beaten so thin that 125,000 leaves of it piled on top of one another would only reach an inch in height. When beaten into the thinnest possible sheet it becomes transparent.

Gold, too, can be drawn into the finest wire of any metal. Michael Faraday, the great British chemist, once calculated that he could make a gold wire from four sovereigns long enough to go around the earth.

It is because gold can be beaten so thin that tobaccoists are able to use real gold for tipping cigarettes, and yet not charge an exorbitant price for them.—Pearsons.

Jefferson Davis Memorial Tag Day

The unique way in which the Daughters of the Confederacy observed Tag Day Monday was very pleasant, easy and far exceeded their expectations as to receipts. The people were liberal and exceedingly gracious for which we thank them all. The young ladies who so willingly gave their services and dispensed sunshine and sweetness everywhere we are very grateful to and to all who offered their places of business for our Tag Day stations. We will open a campaign fund shortly for the Jefferson Davis Memorial for we feel that the enterprising merchants, farmers and all commercial men and the liberal-hearted boosters of Hopkinsville, the H. B. M. A., will all be glad to contribute to this great cause. They know a good thing when they see it. And of course this splendid undertaking is worthy of due contributions from the general public. This Tag Day fund is a snug nest egg and Gen. Littlefield will double it as he will even do when all the splendid business men of this community and this grand old State and even the nation at large will contribute to this fund.

We feel sure that our people will show their colors when the appropriate time comes.

CHRISTIAN CO. CHAPTER, U. D. C.

of the colors in our flag; the red for courage, the white for purity, and the leaves combining as they do yellow for wisdom, and blue for truth, blended together forming the green of fruitfulness, and surely typical of our country. The seed pod on opening, forms a perfected five-pointed star. The flower is most wonderfully formed, like a chalice, with five delicately curved edges, the blossoms clustered together like the constellation of the states, sometimes forty-nine on one stem. "The Union Forever," as a veteran said on counting them.

The laurel grows profusely in the thirteen original states, and can be made to grow anywhere. It is a sturdy shrub, growing to the height of a tree in some places. The writer has stood under trees of laurel in New Jersey and New York that were much taller than peach trees, and were radiantly lovely with their clusters of rosy bloom. The laurel does not depend upon the bees for fertilization, having an internal mechanism that throws the pollen on its own pistil; like America, having all its resources within its own borders. The laurel has never been used as the national emblem of any other land, though the laurel is the plant mentioned in the highest terms in all history. The American variety is eminently fitting to represent this land of ours, that has "won its laurels" in many ways. It was used historically during revolutionary days, for it was on April 21, 1789, that George Washington passed under arches of laurel raised in his honor by the patriots of Trenton, and where white robed girls strewed branches of it in his path, on his way to the first inauguration as president. Last spring, on April 21, the president and officers of the New Jersey State Federation planted 13 laurel shrubs on the Lincoln highway in Trenton in memory of that event, under the auspices of the conservation department.

Admiral Dewey, who was instrumental in having the "Star-Spangled Banner" adopted as the national air, was much interested in the laurel as a national flower. He said: "The laurel is the most honored as well as the most ancient of plants and is mentioned in the Bible."

So a united body of women have accepted a dignified, appropriate, beautiful and classic national flower for America.

Which Do You Prefer?

It is important for reasons of health and practical economy for every housekeeper to ask herself this question:

"Do I prefer a pure baking powder like Royal, made of cream of tartar derived from grapes, or am I willing to use a baking powder made of alum or phosphate, both derived from mineral sources?"

The names of the ingredients printed on the label show whether the kind you are now using or any brand, new or old, that may be offered is a genuine cream of tartar powder, or merely a phosphate or alum compound.

Royal Baking Powder contains no alum nor phosphate.

A Wise Grandmother.

Bequests of $10,000 each have been left by a New York woman to her several granddaughters, conditionally upon the girls' proving their fitness for housekeeping by serving a six-course dinner which shall satisfy the various requirements as to food value and esthetic setting, wearing the while a gown of her own making. One granddaughter already has qualified and has been paid her bequest. The decedent's will was a very unusual one—judging by present day standards—and it brings to the front thoughts of value to millions of our people.

From the viewpoint of desirable publicity the testator could have left no provision so useful as the conditional bequests—when the conditions have been met. It is a fact that the $10,000 is as nothing compared with the value the girls are to derive from escaping the thralldom so many women nowadays yield to the cantankerous and shiftless domestic. There can be no doubt that many an almost worthless household servant quite willingly would address herself more ably and cheerfully to her task if only her employer were qualified to instruct her.—Louisville Times.

RELOADING DEUTSCHLAND

Expects To Sail Middle of Week—No Secrets About Departure.

New London, Conn., Nov. 8.—"Old reliable authority" is up and doing in New London this evening, and on him it can be stated that the German submarine Deutschland will depart from these shores Friday or Saturday. It will go in broad daylight, just as Capt. Paul Koenig said a few days ago. It will sail, says the venerable "good authority" with no ceremony or secrecy.

The Deutschland has been unloaded. It is now being reloaded. Seventy-five perspiring steyedeers of darkies are pawning nickel and rubber into the yawning hatches of the underwater packet.

The master of the Deutschland and Germany's greatest war hero, Capt. Paul Koenig, was smilingly silent when asked about the exact day and hour of his fading. He made an appointment for a man from New York to see him on an important matter, however, and when asked what would be the latest day for the man to keep the appointment, he said Thursday.

The captain came up from the state pier this afternoon in Paul Hilken's motor car.

"We are out looking at the sights of the town," said Capt. Koenig.

A big crowd of sightseers buzzed around the state pier, despite the rain that fell all day. An aged woman handed a letter to a member of the crew, to be mailed in Germany. She is trying to get word of two sons who are in the great war.

WHEN THE DINERS ARE LATE

Food May Be Kept in Good Condition
If Requisite Paraphernalia Is at Hand.

This problem confronts every housekeeper in all the seasons, and perhaps it is the lagging breakfast-comers, and those who are a little uncertain at the dinner hour who cause her the most anxiety. However, since the introduction of hot water plates and platters, this has ceased to be serious a question.

The food on these plates, after the nickel reservoir under them has been filled with boiling hot water may be covered with the nickel cover and will keep in perfect condition for a half or even three-quarters of an hour. The vegetables, cooked now in the three-quarter compartment steamers, may be well kept for at least the same length of time. The roast, done in the universal covered roasting pan, will suffer none from the same length delay.

Tiny alcohol burners under the little chafing dishes used for saucers will keep the sauces warm, though perhaps they suffer more than any other one thing by waiting—they get too thick or dry out if allowed to stand, and their flavor is often sacrificed. Soup, of course, can wait without serious injury.

Fish is the hardest article to keep warm unless it is made into a fish turbot. If it has been boiled, then it should be placed on the rack and placed over boiling water, so it is steam-uncovered and covered, but if it is allowed to stand more than ten or fifteen minutes this way it will become "woody" and lose its taste. If creamed, it will stand all right in a double boiler over hot water for twenty or thirty minutes, after which it begins to get watery.

Solid alcohol burners, lighted under the chafing dish long enough at a time to keep the water at boiling point in the water pan, will keep the contents warm without danger of being overcooked, for at least a half-hour.

Any of the plate warmers placed on the dining room radiator will keep the plates warm and ready for serving when needed.

Don't Neglect Your Cold.

Neglected colds get worse, instead of better. A stuffed head, a tight chest must be relieved at once. Dr. B.H.'s Pine-Tar-Honey is Nature's remedy. Honey and glycerine heal the irritated membrane, antiseptic tar loosens the phlegm, you breathe easier and your cold is broken up. Pleasant to take, Dr. B.H.'s Pine-Tar-Honey is an ideal remedy for children as well as grown-ups. At your Druggist, 25c.—Advertisement.

PUT FOOD ON CALORY BASIS

New York Investigators Tell People
What They Should Eat to Get Necessary Heat Energy.

Seven dollars and thirty-one cents a week will buy food for a family of five in New York city, declares the New York Sun.

Experiments carried on during the last two years by the social service department of the Beth Israel hospital have furnished the health department data for the foregoing conclusion. Sample menus and lists of supplies are offered—all based on the carefully worked out theory that father needs about three thousand calories of heat energy every day, mother can manage with 2,500, while the children will thrive on from twelve hundred to sixteen hundred each.

"We have been trying to spread such knowledge for some time," Health Commissioner Emerson declares. "Certainly this list should prove invaluable to the housewife who is trying to provide a wholesome diet at a limited cost."

We hope it may. At the same time we can't help sympathizing with housewives who take pride in catering, not on the calory basis but on the old-fashioned principle of marketing for what the family likes and what seems to agree with it. "Nobody," as Bret Harte used to say, "likes to have somebody else taste his lemonade for him."

Folks make some pretty bad mistakes about food. But who wants to be watered and fed like a plant?

FAMILY CAT'S NAME BLACKED.

Ninety per cent of the young birds are killed by cats, according to Louis Agassiz Fuertes, naturalist and painter, who spoke at a meeting held for the purpose of organizing an Audubon club. Mr. Fuertes asserted that any attempt to encourage birds was perfectly useless unless precautions were adopted to reduce the slaughter by cats.

Not only the stray back yard cat is the enemy of the birds, Mr. Fuertes said, but the family pet as well. The most loving pet becomes a heartless marauder at night and should be kept indoors after dark. Mr. Fuertes said that each bird has an individual note in its song which can be recognized. He also said that the songs of birds were not always just a burst of gladness, but a necessary part of their life and development.

PARADISE IN THE COUNTRY

A Life Town a Desirable Place to Live In.

NOT DEAD, BUT MERELY SICK

Man Made Country Towns; God to Be Thanked For Them—Ten Men Engaged in Rural Life Succeed Where There Is but One Succeeds in the City.

[Copyrighted, 1914, by Thomas J. Sullivan.]
If you would be known and not know, vegetate in a village. If you would know and not be known, live in the city.

God made the country, and man made the town. What wonder that health and virtue should abound and least be threatened in field and grove?

But, while man made the country towns, God is to be thanked for them. They have been as lamps of life along the pathway of humanity and religion. Within them great men have been born and great minds conceived and developed. Behind their walls freedom has fought her noblest battles. They have stood on the surface of the earth like great breakwaters, rolling back or turning aside the swelling tide of oppression. Country towns have been the cradles of human liberty. They have been the active sentries of almost all church and state reformation.

Towns Not Dead—Only Sick.
We refer, of course, to live, prosperous towns, not places that are dead and ready for the last sad rites. Of course there are many towns which are not dead, only sick. They need a tonic to quicken their pulse; they need general treatment by a community specialist, or, better still, they should consult their pride and their conscience and awaken to a full realization of their position and condition.

The wise farmer is looking for the best market possible for his products. He will naturally find it in a live town where there are live, up to date merchants and business men. These men are not only making good markets for the farmer, but are vitally interested in the welfare of the entire town and surrounding community.

For Universal Good.
They see beyond the results of one day's trade and realize that there is something more in life than mere money making. They are actively interested in bettering community conditions from an educational, social, moral as well as financial standpoint.

Interested in bettering community conditions from an educational, social, moral as well as financial standpoint. Effort in this line is not confined to the town alone, as the magnificent benefits extend beyond the corporation limits. The town is made a community and trade center for farmers as well as townspeople, where there is a lively co-operation which makes for universal good.

It was a beautiful truth which our forefathers symbolized when in the old market towns they erected a market cross, as if to teach both buyers and sellers to rule their actions and sanctify their gains by the remembrance of the cross.

Standard Goods Bear Trade Mark.
The live town furnishes a market for all kinds of farm produce. It also becomes a center of exchange which supplies every human requirement from a needle to a steam thrasher or the luxurious automobile. Modern merchants pride themselves on their ability to serve the buying public. They fill their stores with merchandise of a standard quality which should make and keep customers.

In previous articles we have shown how a good town contributes to higher farm values and how farm prosperity may be directly and greatly influenced by the presence of a good town. This being the case, there is a natural relation between country and townspeople which many perhaps have not thoroughly considered.

Same Goods, Same Price.
A live town with live merchants who are broad minded enough to look beyond present day profits invariably affects land values and the desirability of the countryside as a place to live. Let it be remembered that standard made goods bearing a registered trademark sell for the same price the world over, and the manufacturer's guarantee of quality stands behind them in the village store as well as in the large city mercantile emporium.

Any manufacturing concern which will permit itself to be tempted into turning out goods which do not bear its name or trademark is a mighty unreliable institution. If its dealings with the mail order house are fair and honest, why does it try to shield itself from public discovery?

Price and Quality.
The lower grade goods and "seconds" never carry the maker's name and are sold almost exclusively by the retail catalogue houses or ten cent stores to consumers who have not an opportunity to inspect the goods or who consider the price rather than quality.

Buying your necessities at home and selling your produce at home is what makes and keeps the home market and contributes largely to the making of the home town and community the sort of place in which one generally desires to live and die.

TOUCHED PORTER'S HEART

George Could Not Take Money From Man Who Was Less Fortunate Than Himself.

A correspondent sends us an excerpt from a yet unpublished work to be entitled "A Sentimental Journey to the Pacific Coast."

"It was about seven o'clock in the evening," relates Mr. Thornton, "when the following conversation took place between myself and the porter, who, strangely enough, was called George: 'Well,' said I, 'it has been a nice day. No noise, no dust, smooth riding and an empty car?'"

"'Beggin' yo' pardon, suh,' demurred George, 'Ah begs to diffah with you, suh. It's been an exceedingly po' day today, suh.'"

"'Why do you speak thus, George?'" "In de fust place, dey's been no dust, as you say. Dat means less brushin', an' less brushin' means slim tips. Dey's been nobody on de cyah, as you remark. Dat means slim pickin'. Yessuh, dat's how she go. Ah depends on de travellin' public fo' subsistence. Ah'm de oldest potah on de line. Mah haid done grow gray in de service, an' mah life is a failure, suh."

"I felt sorry, so I handed him a dime. I said: 'I'm sorry I can't make it more, George, but this is all I have. I'm in de law business.'"

"Well, of co'se dey's always dose dat's wusser off dan us,' said George, brightening up. 'Ah'm sorry fo' you, suh.'"

"And he handed me back my dime."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Nearly Transparent.
Just as the football match was getting interesting it began to rain. A well-dressed man in the front row of the stand immediately raised his umbrella, which was rather the worse for wear.

As soon as it appeared, however, the people behind him began to grumble that they couldn't see the game. The well-dressed individual at once turned to them and said in a supercilious voice:

"I—er—beg your pardon! But can't you see over my umbrella?"

"No," replied a voice from the rear, "we can't see over, but we can nearly see through it!"

Forget Your Aches

Stiff knees, aching limbs, lame back make life a burden. If you suffer from rheumatism, gout, lumbago, neuralgia, get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment, the universal remedy for pain. Easy to apply; it penetrates without rubbing and soothes the tender flesh. Cleaner and more effective than musky ointments or poultices. For strains or sprains, sore muscles or wrenched ligaments resulting from strenuous exercise, Sloan's Liniment gives quick relief. Keep it on hand for emergency. At your Druggist, 25c.—Advertisement.

Jury Acquits Forger Hero.

Acquittal by the jury at the Gers (France) assizes of the charge of forgery, for which he was sentenced by default to 20 years' penal servitude, will be prized by Second Lieutenant Pechin as a greater reward for his gallantry in this war than his stripe, the medaille militaire and even the Legion of Honor, which he has won by honorable wounds in battle.

Business misfortune drove Pechin to forgery and he fled to the Ivory coast, where he toiled until he had paid back every penny he owed. Then when the war came he never hesitated, but enlisted under an alias as a private, and now that honors were to be showered on him he was discovered and all seemed lost, but the Gers jury knew its duty.

Sauteed Oysters.
To be prepared in the chafing dish. Free the oysters from bits of shell and rinse if gritty, drain and lay on a bed of coarse cracker crumbs, rolled rather coarsely, and seasoned with pepper and salt. Put enough butter into the blazer to more than cover the bottom, lay in the oysters and turn as soon as light brown, adding more butter as needed. Serve with olives or picailili.

Pineapple Tapioca.
Scald one quart of milk, add to this one-half cupful tapioca, let come to a boil; two eggs, one-half cupful sugar; cook until thick, flavor with vanilla, cool and pour over sliced pineapple; serve with whipped cream.

MOTHER'S REMEDY FOR BRUISES

Children's Bumps, Sprains and Minor Hurts Quickly Relieved by Sloan's Liniment.

It is the very nature of children to hurt themselves—to come crying to mother with little fingers bruised, with heads bumped, with sprained ankles and wrists.

They are painful hurts, too. But their pain and stings can't survive the gentle use of this liniment. A single application of Sloan's Liniment and—the little fellow's bravely kept back tears give way to smiles. His hurt is relieved.

In every home where there are children a bottle of Sloan's Liniment is a necessity.

Aching muscles, rheumatism, lumbago, stiff neck, backache, chilblains, etc., can be effectively relieved with Sloan's Liniment. Cleaner than musky ointments or plasters.

Sloan's Liniment can be obtained at all drug stores, 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

KILLS PAIN

Zinc in War Time.

Zinc is so essential in war time that it has risen enormously in price. Costing originally only two-fifths as much as copper, it now costs decidedly more than copper, in spite of the fact that copper itself has sharply increased in value. Zinc is a constituent of cartridge brass and shell fuses, and is used also as a covering for iron barbed-wire fencing. In 1913 the United States, Germany and Belgium were the leading producers of zinc.

Of the three, only the United States smelted domestic ores. Belgium and Germany relied mainly on zinc concentrates that they imported from the Broken Hill mines in New South Wales, where, for one reason and another, it does not pay to do the smelting. France, Spain and Great Britain also produce substantial quantities, but not enough to supply their own needs. Austria and Germany have considerable deposits of ore in Silesia, Hungary, Carinthia and the Tyrol. As the zinc-smelting furnaces of Great Britain are not well adapted for dealing with the Broken Hill concentrates it buys the bulk of its supplies from the United States.

Spanish Rice.
One tablespoonful of good lard in spider, very hot. Fry one minced onion, a handful of minced olives, one small minced chili pepper or ten drops of tabasco sauce, parsley, salt and pepper. Fry till golden brown. Add one and a half cupfuls of uncooked Carolina rice. Fry until pale yellow. Put this into a double boiler. Add two cupfuls of strained tomato and four cupfuls of ground steak broth. Stir once, thoroughly. Cover and let cook until rice is done—at least 2½ hour.

MEN IN MIND IN HOPKINSVILLE

Prominent Factors in The Busy Life of the Pearl
City.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH NO. 116.

One of Hopkinsville's Prominent and Promising Young Business Men.

J. H. CATE, JR.

J. Harry Cate, Jr., is one of the younger business men of Hopkinsville. He was born at Rumsey, Ky., Oct. 26, 1890, and came with his parents to the city when a child only two years of age. While not a native of Hopkinsville, he cannot remember when he ever lived anywhere else.

As a schoolboy he early gave indications of the strong intellect that nature had endowed him with. He was a fine student and at the close of the session at which he graduated, he won the class medal for oratory.

Having finished his education he accepted a clerical position in railroad business in Nashville, where he remained for two or three years. A part of the time was in the railroad office and a part in one of the banks. About three years ago he returned to Hopkinsville, and having married, assisted his father in the milling business for about a year. Two years ago he opened a store of his own, handling groceries and feed stuffs, on the corner of Fifth and Virginia streets. Here he conducted a successful business until a few days ago, when he received an offer that was too tempting to turn down and sold out the business. He has not yet announced his plans for the future, but will soon be back in business again.

He is one of the sterling and promising young men who are to be the future leaders of affairs in Hopkinsville, the kind of young men who are needed in every city.

Mr. Cate lives at 1017 East Ninth street, close to the ancestral home, where his boyhood days was spent. He is an active and useful member of the Methodist church and enjoys the respect and confidence of all who know him.

Heavy Loss In Horses.

Ringling Bros. circus, which exhibited in Hopkinsville September 30, lost 47 draft horses last week at Huntsville, Ala., when fire destroyed the stable tent. Some of 45 more animals that were injured may have to be killed, but the circus ordered 90 new horses for delivery this week at Clarksdale, Miss. The horses killed were valued at about $350 each. The loss in horseflesh alone was $16,450, exclusive of the big tent and equipment.

Of 16,700 cows tested through 47 Wisconsin cow-testing associations last year, 3,375 were disposed of as unprofitable.

BOOSTERS TRIP IS POSTPONED

Trip To Princeton Will Be Made Tuesday Instead of Today.

It was found necessary yesterday to postpone the booster trip to Princeton until next Tuesday. Cars could not be secured for the trip today and all of the towns were called up by telephone and told of the postponement. The pathfinders who went over the route Tuesday found everybody ready to give a cordial greeting and the roads were in the main very good. The closeness of the election and the inability of the committees to get their minds on anything but politics, made the change imperative. Several of the best speakers could not go this week who will be ready for Tuesday.

The schedule as arranged will be carried out without alteration.

CAMPBELL-DICKERSON.

Engagement of Miss Myrtle Dickerson and Mr. Arnold Campbell Announced.

At a two-course luncheon Saturday afternoon Miss Crit McKnight announced the engagement of Miss Myrtle Dickerson to Mr. Arnold Campbell, the wedding to take place Nov. 22. The dining room was artistically decorated in pink and white. Sus-pendent from the ceiling was a large wedding bell, from which streamers of pink and white reached to each plate where small pink bells marked the place of the guests. After the place cards were read a delightful luncheon was served to: Misses Myrtle Dickerson, Louise Haynes, Mary Quarles, Bertha Clardy, R. E. Coleman, Lena Foster, Mary Kaye, Josie Fleming and Anna Adams.
